ASPARAGUS AND THE DUKE

Windsor visits his Bahamian subjects at New Jersey c

While his Duchess went shopping in New York last week, the Duke of Windsor, in his capacity as Governor General of the Bahama Islands, dropped in on 80 his subjects at Swedesboro, N. J. The 214 Bahamian Negroes, recently im- to help with U. S. crops, sang God Save the King twice as the Duke toured Farm Security Administration camp. They told the former King that they d care for the strange food or the stranger climate, but did like the higher wages. Then the Duke doffed his bowler hat and smart topcoat, walked stiff the muddy fields where he learned how to cut asparagus and how to pose v (left). He even brought some stalks home to the Duchess and the Waldorf-A

BAHAMIANS ARRIVE • FOR FARM WORK

In Washington last week the Senate passed a bill appropriating $26,100,000 to establish a "land army" to help in the production and harvesting of this year's crops. In Miami new recruits for this wartime farm army were arriving by plane and ship from the Bahama Islands. The Bahamian Negroes, enlisted in Nassau by the U. S. Agricultural Labor Administration, were immediately settled in huge migratory workers' camps among the Everglades and put to work picking Florida's ripe bean and sugar-cane crops.

While the Bahamians, zoot-suited in the latest Harlem fashion, were pouring into Miami at the rate of 175 a day, labor officials charged that 300 U. S. farm families recently brought from the mid-South to Florida were being returned to their homes. Nevertheless, the Department of Agriculture is going ahead with plans to import as many as 3,000 Bahamians and later 10,000 Jamaicans on a for-the-duration basis. During the last war, too, several thousand Bahamian Negroes were temporarily moved in to supplement the nation's draft-depleted labor supply. Many of them decided to remain, and immigration officials are still chasing them.

Immigration officials record vital statistics on the migrants, take their fingerprints, give them identification cards which must be carried at all times. Many of these Negro workers were until recently employed in building a nearly completed U. S. air base in the Bahamas. Hard-pressed Florida farmers have contracted for the importation of more than 5,000 Bahamians.
